JORDAN

THE COUNTRY

Jordan is where history whispers from every stone — and where the open road invites you to discover it at your own pace.

This is the land where Moses once gazed from Mount Nebo, where Cleopatra sought the minerals of the Dead Sea, and where Nabatean traders carved Petra into rose-red cliffs. Legends live here — yet Jordan is no museum. It is alive, vibrant, and welcoming.

Few countries combine such contrasts:

- In a single day, you can float weightlessly at Earth's lowest point, the Dead Sea, then drive into mountains dusted with snow.
- You can explore Roman amphitheaters in Amman, then sip coffee in chic cafés buzzing with young Jordanians.
- At night in Wadi Rum, the desert sky reveals constellations so clear that Bedouins still navigate by them.

And for the driver, Jordan is pure joy. Smooth highways unfold across desert plains, winding mountain roads reveal breathtaking vistas, and coastal stretches hug the blue waters of the Red Sea. Every turn holds a story, every mile a new horizon.

Jordan is not just a destination to visit — it is a land to be driven, experienced, and remembered.

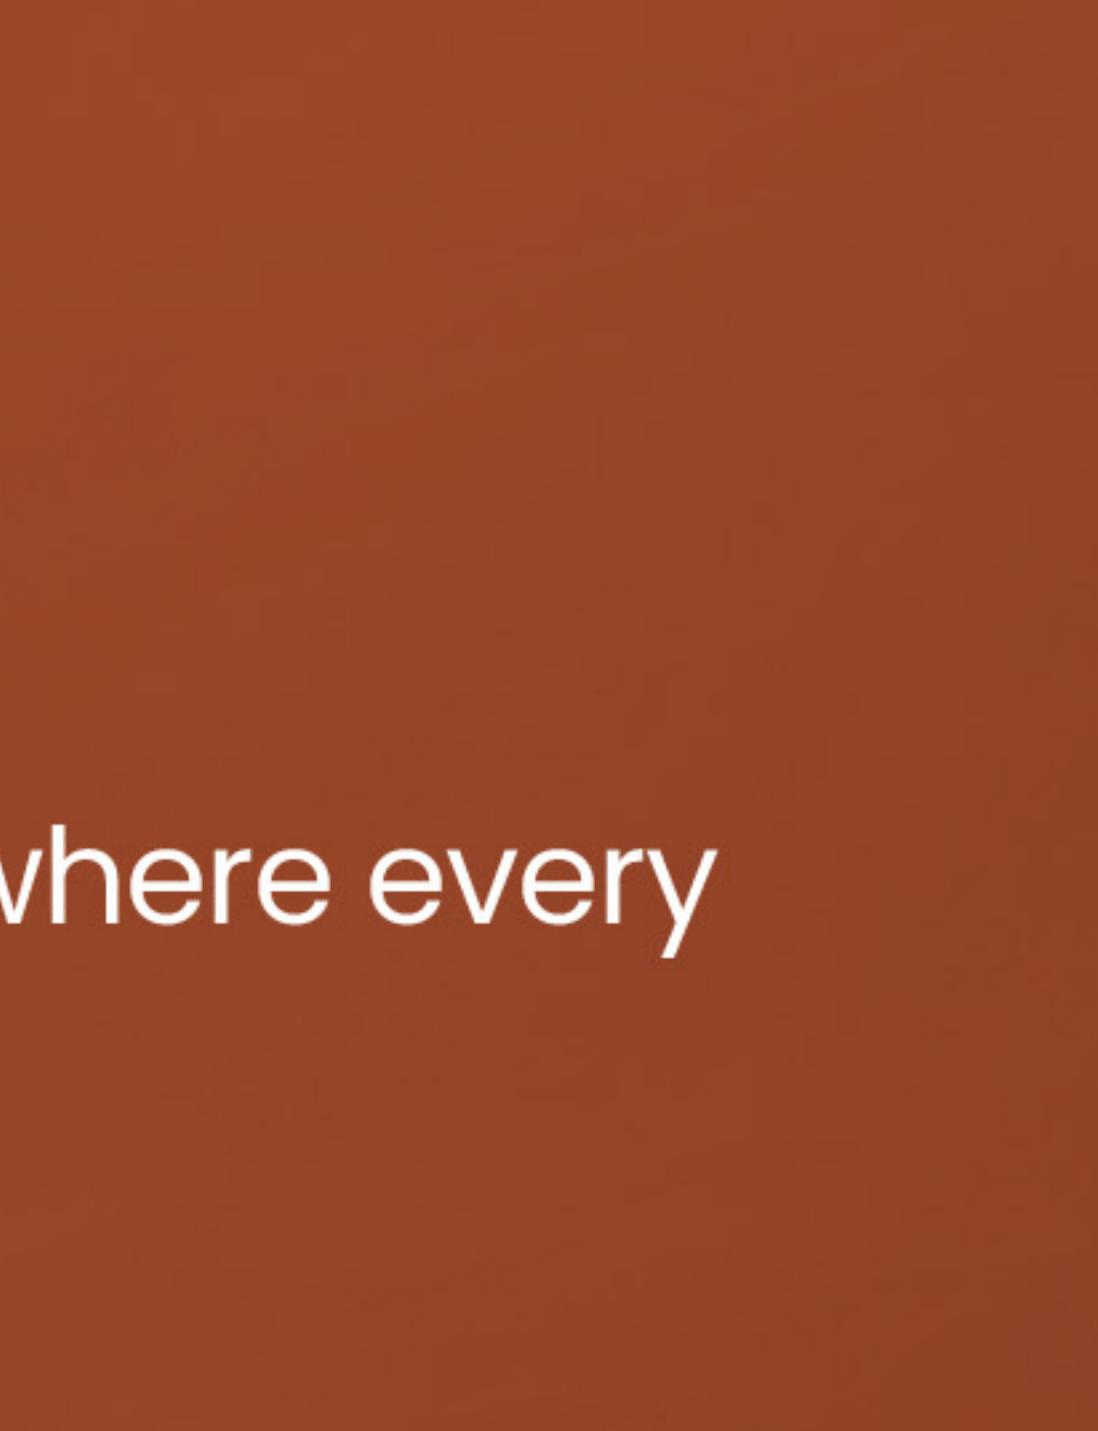

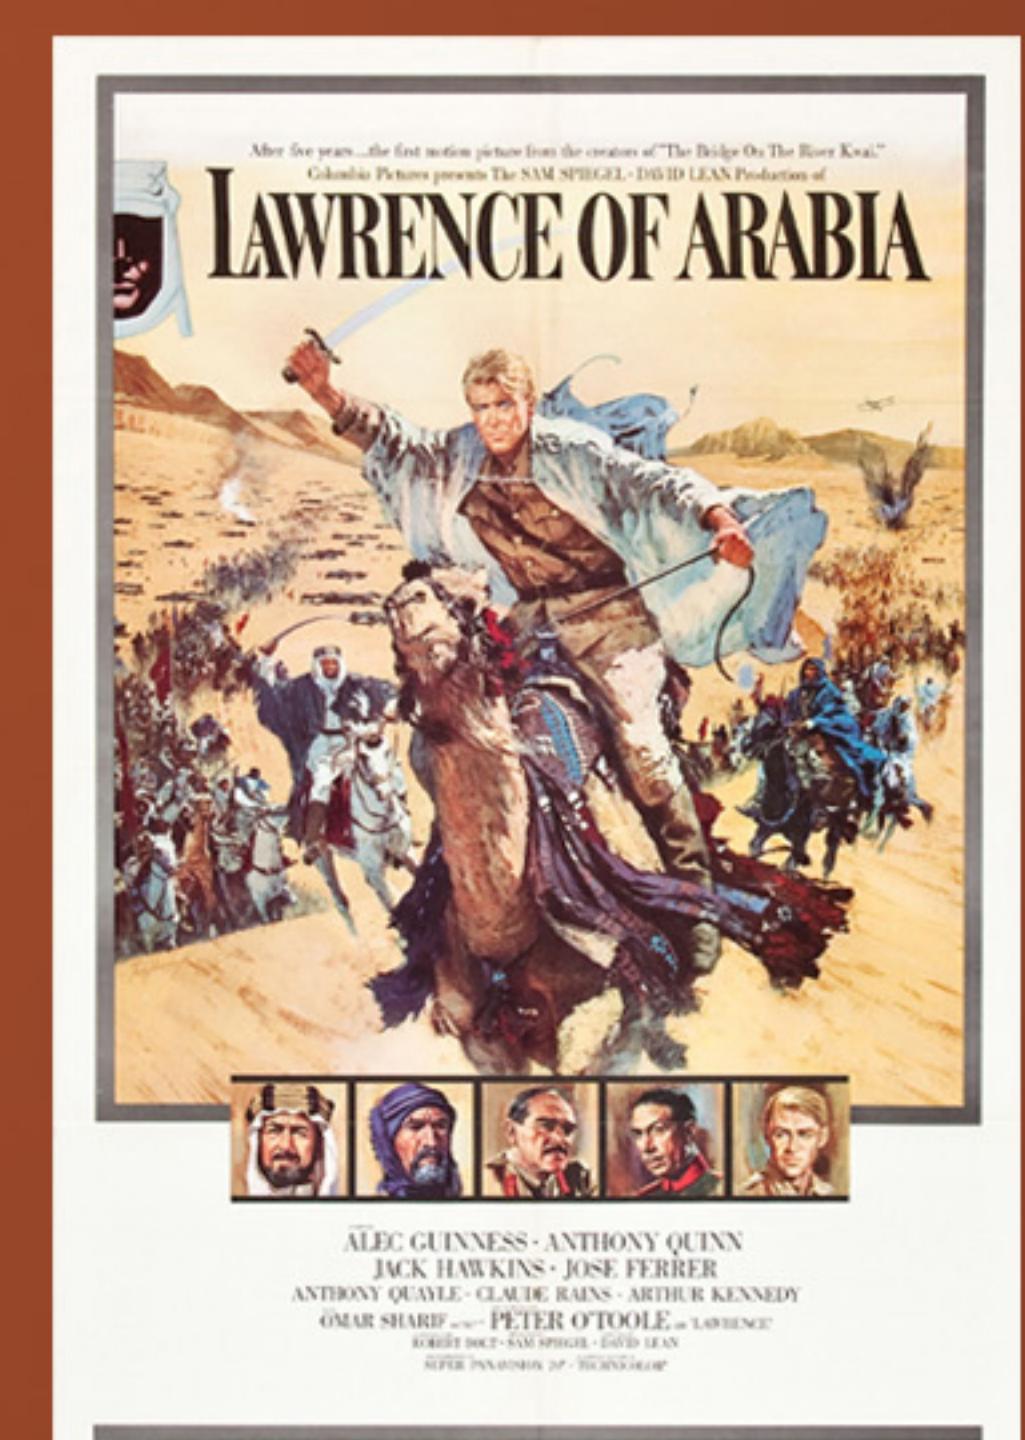

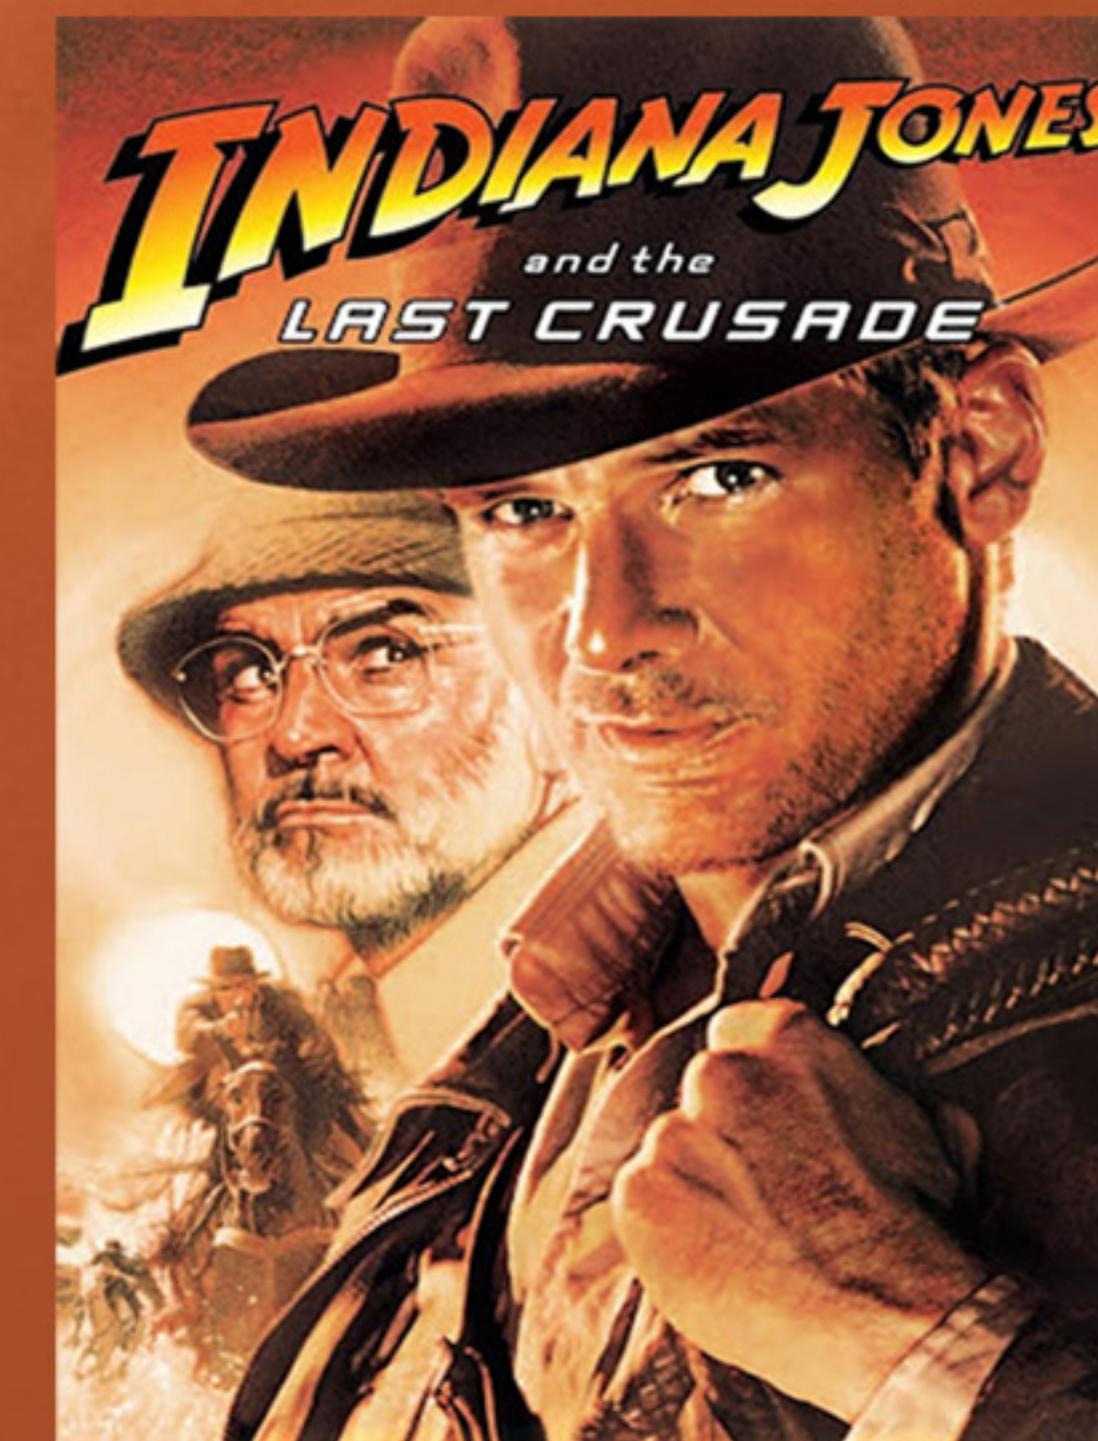

JORDAN ON THE SILVER SCREEN

Jordan has long been Hollywood's desert stage and the backdrop for some of cinema's greatest stories. Its dramatic landscapes, timeless monuments, and otherworldly skies have inspired directors and transported audiences across worlds.

From the rose-red walls of Petra to the vast silence of Wadi Rum, Jordan has hosted blockbusters that shaped our imagination:

- Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade — Petra's Treasury as the Holy Grail temple.
- The Martian — Wadi Rum as the red planet.
- Star Wars and Mad Max: Fury Road — epic desert battles across the Valley of the Moon.
- Lawrence of Arabia — the film that first introduced Wadi Rum to the world.
- Aadujeevitham (The Goat Life) — Malayalam cinema's ambitious desert odyssey.

To travel through Jordan is to walk onto a living film set, where every canyon and every horizon feels larger than life.

FLAVOURS OF JORDAN

In Jordan, food is not just eaten — it is honored. Every meal is a gesture of welcome, every flavor a bridge to the country's soul.

The national dish, Mansaf, is more than lamb, rice, and yogurt. It is the food of celebration — once served to kings and still prepared today to honor guests. To share mansaf in Jordan is to be treated like family.

In the cafés of Amman, golden falafel and freshly baked pita are enjoyed with conversations that last longer than the meal. In bustling souks, the air is rich with the aroma of spices, roasted nuts, and syrup-soaked sweets.

And then comes Kunafa — layers of pastry, cheese, and syrup that have become a symbol of Jordan's sweet hospitality. Best enjoyed hot, in the company of friends, it is a dessert as unforgettable as Petra itself.

Even coffee here has meaning. Bedouin coffee, brewed strong and spiced with cardamom, is poured in small cups as a sign of trust and friendship. Refusing a refill is as much a ritual as accepting one.

To taste Jordan is to taste its history, its generosity, and its warmth. Each bite is not only delicious — it is a story you will carry home.

OUR DRIVING LEGACY

Every great journey begins with a road – and at FFTV, we have turned roads into legends.

From the tropical highways of Malaysia to the winding coastal drives of Thailand, our self-drive convoys have brought together families, friends, and leaders who value discovery with comfort. Each tour was more than a holiday; it was a bond – forged on the road, celebrated in shared moments, and remembered for a lifetime.

What is a Driving Holiday?

You drive your own car in a convoy of like-minded travellers – across landscapes chosen for their beauty, culture, and safety. Every route is pre-planned, every stop thoughtfully curated, yet the thrill of being behind the wheel makes each journey your own.

Unlike traditional tours where you follow a guide with little flexibility, our Driving Holidays place you at the heart of the adventure:

- Convoy Experience – You're never alone. Our lead and support vehicles ensure comfort, safety, and coordination.
- Curated Stays – Luxury hotels, boutique resorts, and desert camps, all handpicked for their charm.
- Authentic Encounters – From dining with locals to experiencing cultures firsthand, the road leads to moments no fixed itinerary can capture.
- Seamless Support – 24/7 operations team, mechanics on call, and local experts always
